NEW YORK

The Concrete Jungle, The Big Apple, The City That Never Sleeps... call it what you want as New York is a city for everyone; an open door where tourists are welcomed into the multi-cultured melting pot.

In addition to the traditional landmarks of the Empire State Building, Statue of Liberty boat cruise, Broadway and the poignant 9/11 Museum, there are several alternative experiences ideal for school groups. School groups seeking to focus on business studies will be eager to wander the streets of the Financial District and find themselves on the notorious Wall Street. Alternatively, take the African American Civil Rights Tour through Harlem or provide art students with a fascinating street art tour across Lower Manhattan and Brooklyn.

WASHINGTON, DC

Washington, DC is a museum itself with memorials within walking distance of each other signposting significant periods in U.S. history. The Smithsonian Institution alone offers a collection of 19 artefact-filled museums documenting everything from natural history to space and art to African-America culture.

Inevitably, history is closely tied to political life in the capital. A popular choice with school groups, a tour of the U.S. Capitol building provides students with an insightful peak into U.S. governance. Don't miss out on a visit to the International Spy Museum which provides an interactive and unique look at intelligence and espionage.

BOSTON

In every practical sense, Boston is the oldest city in the USA where it seems you can't go one block without literally stepping into an historic site. The Freedom Trails meander through the city and provides a great opportunity to start a conversation around America's Revolution. Highlights include Faneuil Hall, a guided tour of Harvard University, Fenway Park and the New England Aquarium.

PHILADELPHIA

Philly gives school groups a big city experience while still holding onto its historic small-town charm. Run the steps like Rocky at the city's Museum of Art, explore the work of Rodin, and see Independence Hall and the Liberty Bell as the 'City of Brotherly Love' offers excellent cross-curricular options. Philadelphia can be included as a stop on a multi-city tour with New York and Washington, DC.

CHICAGO

Enjoy a little bit of everything that makes a school trip great – from architectural river cruises and theatre shows, to world-class museums and cultural quarter tours. Browse the largest collection of impressionist work outside of Paris at the Art Institute of Chicago and meet “Maximo” – the largest dinosaur ever unearthed – in the city’s Field Museum. A culture built on architecture, food and sport, the Windy City is the ideal cross-curricular experience that can be tailored to your specific outcomes.

MEMPHIS AND NASHVILLE

Take a unique tour focusing on Tennessee’s twin cities of music. Alongside an in-depth view on the history of blues and – of course – country and western, both Memphis and Nashville offer a wider insight into U.S. history as a whole. A highly informative stop is the National Civil Rights Museum which consists of a complex of museums and historic buildings, with many opportunities for both educational and personal development.

HUNTSVILLE SPACE CENTER

Stimulate an interest in STEM or build on GCSE choices with practical experience and fun team-building activities. Best of all, teachers can get involved as much as the students! This trip can include additional Atlanta activities, such as a visit to the World of Coca-Cola Museum. Alternatively, this tour can be fully combined with an Alabama history and civil rights experience.

ORLANDO

Combine fun and education in the world’s most famous theme parks! Universal Studios gives students hands-on experiential learning activities, while Disney educational workshops can be mixed-and-matched to support your classroom learning. Within reach of Orlando, students can visit the Kennedy Space Center and the Orlando Science Center – both perfect for STEM – as well as once-in-a-lifetime experiences such as airboating.

DALLAS AND FORT WORTH

Dallas was a city seen to epitomise the USA and American culture. However, the third largest city in Texas may not be the atypical metropolis as its sporting exports, art, consumer industries and non-reliance on the Texan oil industry has seen Dallas become one of the fastest-growing cities in the USA. Together with Fort Worth, students can immerse themselves in the fanfare of professional rodeos and cattle drives, visit the world-famous Texas Motor Speedway, and learn more about former U.S. presidents in the museums of Dallas.

WEST COAST USA

A coast of contrasts, students will discover buzzing cosmopolitan cities nestled in amongst epic and awe-inspiring natural landscapes. Take on a STEM experience in San Francisco and visit the innovative Silicon Valley, explore media in LA's home to Hollywood, and witness natural phenomena in Death Valley. Whether you are seeking a geography tour or cross-curricular experience, we can tailor your West Coast USA school trip to meet your learning goals.

LOS ANGELES

LA isn't the West Coast's answer to New York, it stands on its own as a city that offers more than the glitz and glamour of Hollywood to media students or the largest art museum in the Western United States (LACMA) to art and design students. Science, geography and performing arts are all covered as are California's world-renowned theme parks which simply sit as cherries on the top of one of the greatest school trip destinations.

SAN FRANCISCO

The Bay Area may be seen to be home to a strong bohemian scene, but it is the hub of technological innovation that will hold your students' interest. Visit the Computer History Museum in Silicon Valley to explore the pioneers of computer technology, including Apple and Google, and visit the NASA Ames Visitor Center to learn more about the agency's research. Don't miss out on a tour of Alcatraz as students visit the former federal prison!

LAS VEGAS

Las Vegas is certainly a feast for the eyes with the desert city offering unmatched entertainment options. Step outside of the neon lights lighting up Nevada and geography students will take part in some outstanding learning experiences which sees them visit one of the most well-known natural formations in the world, the Grand Canyon; the diverse Mojave National Preserve; and Death Valley National Park.
